

A Slap!

Debdoot Mukherjee

State-Aided College Teacher, Category-1
Department of English, Bhangar Mahavidyalaya
University of Calcutta

A striking slap is enough.
Most preferably on the face.
To force a change.
To induce a rupture.
To bring ruin to a relationship.
The lifting of the hand,
The straightening of it,
The fiery palm,
The violence in the face,
And a tight slap!
A tight slap is enough
To foreclose intimacy.
To alter measurements of smile.
To walk away with teary eyes,
Deserting explanation.
Who slaps whom?
Everybody slaps everybody.
Just like slapping a dead body.
It doesn't take much,
Just a little effort,
And get detached from your mind,
Let anger in.
Poison your senses.
Forget peace and just give a tight slap.
A father slaps, so does a child.
A boy slaps, so does a girl.
A man slaps, so does a woman.
A husband slaps, so does a wife.
A teacher slaps, so does a student.
A politician slaps, so does a common man.
Fortune slaps, one also slaps oneself.
Slap! Slap! Slap!
Broken ties deplorably crouch!
Broken hearts seldom rally!
The fingerprints of anger never fade!