

I Drowned in Her Eye

Sreeparvathy R

Former Faculty Member

Dept. of English, Sree Ayyappa College
Eramallikkara, Kerala, India

I saw the kohl that hid her sorrow-bloomed eyes,

And it twined around her pupil,

As a Black Mamba or

Was it a Water Moccasin?

While adorning one of her black moons with my sweet lips,

A bit, suck and the smell of cucumber*!

That long black lashes pushed me into the depths of her liquid eye.

My drowned body on the next shore, floated like a derelict vessel.

Sea without its waves; her smiling eyes:

Where they stare?

At u; the next prey.

Khol- kajal

Black Mamba- an extremely venomous snake

Water moccasin- a venomous snake

*-the poison of snakes has the smell of cucumber.